Sage In-District Services Presents at Annual Atlantic City Conference

ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY, May 28, 2014 – Executive Director, John Reilly of Sage In-District Services presented a workshop at the Annual New Jersey Association of School Administrators (NJASA) and Pupil Services Administrators (NJAPSA) Conference at Bally’s Atlantic City hotel on Wednesday, May 21, at 3:00 p.m.

Hundreds of Directors of Special Services, Principals and other school administrators who are members of NJASA and NJAPSA attended the three-day conference, which ended on Friday May 23.

The Sage In-District presentation consisted of case studies providing evidence of the consistent success of Sage In-District Services. Participating schools have shown more than a $200,000 annual savings for their districts, while also showing a higher student retention rate.

Sage In-District Services is designed to fill the gap in service between traditional in-school support and an out-of-district placement. The Sage In-District clinical team works with the child study team, academic staff and administration to provide a seamless counseling experience for each student. With the right therapeutic relationship and counseling, students will gain the support, strategies and insight they need in order to make progress in school and to better manage their emotional lives.

“The attendees at the workshop saw the value of providing therapeutic services in their districts,” said Reilly. “ It was great to see how many directors and superintendents are trying to find this type of solution to better meet the needs of both special education and general education students in district.”
